Petr Kobic, President of FESE, commented: “Many congratulations to this year’s winners. Even if ultimately we only crowned one winner per category, being listed on capital markets is already a big achievement - one that makes every public company a winner in their own right.”

“These Awards showcase successful IPOs from all over Europe and provide clear examples of the advantages listing on exchanges offers companies when seeking to access finance.”

“SMEs are the foundation of the European economy. They are vitally important in creating jobs, supporting growth and boosting innovation. Supporting companies such as those celebrated last night to grow is essential to powering Europe’s economic recovery. We, the stock exchanges, will do all we can to enable SMEs to access finance through public markets. Europe must also help to nurture local and developing financial ecosystems which serve smaller companies and their investors, amend the regulatory framework for companies listing, and boost equity and non-equity financing at all stages of the funding escalator.”

Luc Vansteenkiste, Chairman of EuropeanIssuers, said: “The recent two years have been a rollercoaster for all companies in the world, but happily enough we witnessed that most of the EU companies, thanks to the flexibility and fighting spirit of all their stakeholders, survived and started growing again. Today we are facing a new urgent challenge: climate change. Investors and CEOs of companies fully realize that to meet this challenge we are forced to adapt our economic activities. We are all together in this boat and it is my conviction that listed companies have a huge advantage to find the necessary capital and funds to realize these vital projects.

So let me congratulate all companies of the European Small and Mid-Cap Awards, because the fact that you made the step to the stock market, not an easy decision, could be for you in the coming years the source of your survival and growth.”

Kristin Schreiber, Director at the Directorate-General for Internal Market, Industry, Entrepreneurship and SMEs, remarked: ““The COVID-19 crisis severely affected the EU’s economic landscape and triggered the need for renewed ambition to support the financing of high-growth small companies and scale-ups. As indicated in the recent Capital Market Union Action Plan and in the Communication on the SME Strategy, the Commission aims at making it easier for small and high growth companies to raise capital in order to finance their growth, in particular by supporting their access to EU public markets. The European Small and Midcap awards are a great occasion to raise awareness on this objective and promote the access of SMEs to public capital markets. We hope that the awarded companies will serve as good examples for other EU companies needing to access EU public capital markets. As part of the support to the listing in EU markets, the Commission is working on creating a SME IPO Fund which will support EU SMEs during and beyond their listing process.”
